Concrete Canoe '25-'26

Sponsorship Package

About Us

Every year, the American Society of Civil Engineers (ASCE) hosts a national intercollegiate competition in which undergraduate students design and construct a reinforced concrete canoe that is raced. Challenged to push the limits of engineering, UCSD Concrete Canoe provides students a hands-on learning experience mirroring real-world engineering practices in process of design, structural analysis, and project management.

Alongside peers, faculty, and industry professionals we:

1. Perform preliminary design of the canoe and concrete mix executing essential calculations and testing,
2. Construct an elaborate mold compatible with our tensioning system,
3. Labor for hours straight to construct our final product.

In the end, we proudly present and race our canoe in the Pacific Southwest Student Symposium (PSWS)— this year hosted by California State University, Los Angeles. Competing since 2003, we have strived to achieve excellence in every canoe we construct, proudly winning several titles. Throughout the years, priceless knowledge and memories have been passed down from team to team. With the upcoming academic year we strive to be better than our past selves.

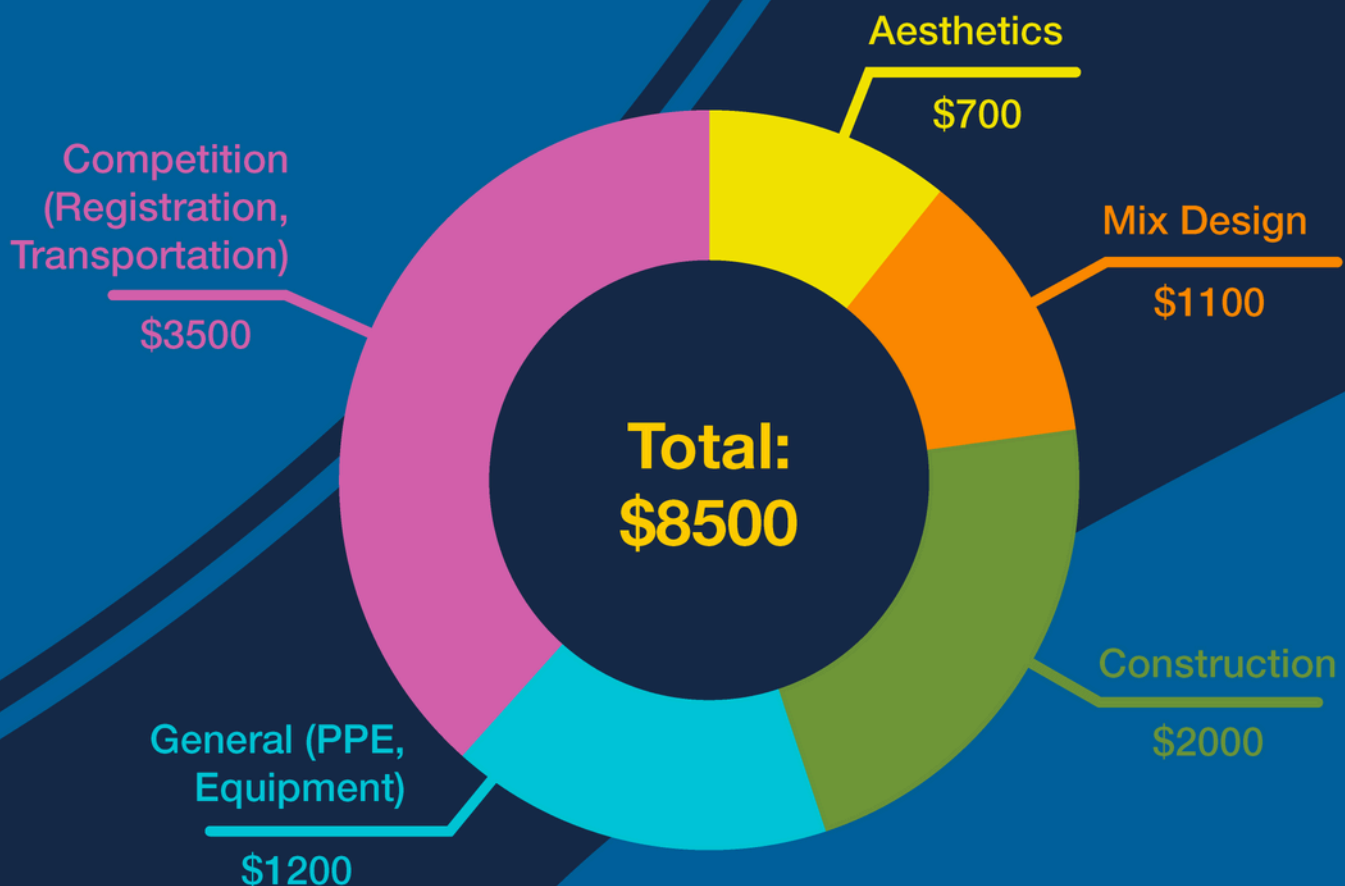

However, we are no better without our sponsors.

Since our beginning, sponsor support has made our journey possible. As we work together, as partners, we aim to learn from, contribute to, and forge connections with your company. In turn, sponsors provide the opportunity for students to engage in an academic and career driven project to remember for life. Come on, how many people get to say they raced a concrete canoe?

Any monetary donations, material/ equipment contribution, or technical guidance would be received with extreme gratitude. If of interest, please proceed to the final page to fill out the Sponsorship Form. As a sponsor, join the lineage in crossing that finish line!
